

Not Supposed To Worship Them

(Parody of "The Call" By Garth Brooks and Trisha Yearwood)

You're not (you're not) supposed (supposed) to worship them
God said no one but Him
Instead (instead) you must (you must) obey your God
They're dying for your sin

But you won't (but you won't) be still and see God's hand
And you know (cuz you know) your flags can't save that man
But you keep trying to break these bands

You're not (you're not) supposed (supposed) to worship them
We tell you once again
We say (we say) you can't (you can't) have hope or peace
Til you put away proud sin

Oh we can't (oh we can't) help but wonder if Even one of you will obey Him
Or if all of you will die for sin

You're not (you're not) supposed (supposed) to worship them – ooh

Oh we're watching (yes we're watching), for the Lord's coming
For his saints, who shall mount up with wings
So repent, or perish all his children sing

you're not (you're not) supposed (supposed) to worship them
